Let's give from our hearts, abundantly and joyfully, in equal measure to the blessings we've been given. LEARN THE 25 HABITS OF A REMARKABLY CLASSY PERSON. Yes! Great idea to give to charity! Maybe others are stressed about gifts too. 1. Place your tip in a sealed Christmas card and include a handwritten note of how much you appreciate the person and how you benefit from the service the person provides you. Any Salon Associate: amount spent on one usual visit. They're bringing back the popular candy cane cup! But the picture below is one that I am in AWE of. Like, I HAVE to get my hands on one. 2. If your budget this year just won't stretch for Christmas tipping, you can still acknowledge the good service of the persons. Share a small gift, and in your note be honest about how your spending has had to be limited this year. Go on to write that you wanted them to know how much you appreciate them and their service. (An extra sweet touch is to write their boss a note or email to say what a fantastic job they're doing for you!). tip should equal the average amount you spend on one visit. If you see the person(s) so often you consider them a personal friend, then a gift is probably more comfortable than a cash tip for you to give and for them to receive. After all, we don't tip our friends! If you're not sure what to do, give a gift card to a store or restaurant you know they enjoy. That way, it's more personal than cash. We do a white elephant or $5 gift exchange with my moms group. Many of the moms have littles, so I was happy to find the Duncan Hines Epic Chocolate Peppermint Cookie Kit at my local grocery store this week. The cookies look like delicious whoopie pies with candy cane sprinkles, and they'd be a fun activity for moms and TEENS to do together during holiday break. Pick up two boxes and you'd have your $10 gift. Cookies. 2007 White To Go Cup (old green logo/red cord). ETA: Ooh, I thought of another one: variety pack of mini coffee/hot chocolate flavor stir-ins (like those the barista uses) with a cute mug. Take the focus off what you (general you) are receiving and put that focus on the fun aspects. 2011 Red To Go Cup; When We're Together. Of course, don't go into debt or not pay the electric bill so you can tip your personal trainer or the lawn service guy; however, if you can afford to employ a personal trainer or lawn service, you should account for their end-of-the-year tip in your budget. Me, I like a coffee house gift card or lottery tickets. Maybe suggest doing an ornament exchange next year if you feel comfortable doing so. We did one every December at our Bunko group. It was a lot of fun and several of my favorite ornaments came from the exchange. 2009 Red To Go Cup; Love Joy Wish. I think for an activity like a gift exchange of this sort, you really need to let go of stress over the gifts themselves. Yes, some people only want items they hand pick in their homes. Or they don't eat this, use that, etc. And that's fine. They can either opt out or simply smile through the process and give the items away later. It is possible to enjoy the activity and process without enjoying the item you receive. With a $5 or $10 item, it's more a party activity rather than giving a personalized gift to someone you know well, kwim? All that aside, some suggestions for a $10 item from me would be one of those Big One Kohl's throws if they are $10 or less right now, which they probably are or will be shortly.
