These Just-Dropped Zodiac Candles Make the Perfect Stocking Stuffer. And thus, "Emotionally Realistic, Yet Slightly Wounded Maria" was born. When asked about her dating life, she levels with you. "Online dating is really hard, but it's impossible to meet men at bars," she'll say. "I'm starting to think that maybe not everyone falls in love." Emotionally Realistic, Yet Slightly Wounded Maria bemoans her bad dates, slaps on a fake smile when you show her your engagement ring, secretly blocks your babies on social media, and sneaks off to the bathroom to swipe on Tinder to soothe her fears of dying alone. Karen Mitner also finds holiday gatherings difficult, as a working mom with a to-do list that rivals Santa's. Between buying gifts for everyone and maintaining the calendar, it's impossible for her to relax and enjoy the season. "Christmas makes me sad, lonely, and full of angst, as I see it as a time of nonstop commitments and obligations," Karen explains. Even though she's been spending the holidays with her husband's family for the past two decades, constant talk of their TEENhood and people from their hometown makes her feel like an outsider. "It makes me feel like I am performing a juggling act of
