It Reduces the Risk of Illness Research has shown that, among the many benefits of eating breakfast, you may also reduce your risk of certain illnesses by regularly enjoying a morning meal. One study published in the International Journal of Environmental Research and Public Health found that individuals who eat breakfast not only have a lower risk of developing cardiovascular disease, but that they also have lower total cholesterol levels compared to those who skip breakfast. Additionally, people who eat a morning meal have a lower risk of developing Type 2 diabetes. By Staff Writer Last Updated June 24, 2020. One mistake many people make when thinking about godparents is assuming that they have legal rights to a TEEN in the event the TEEN's actual parents die. Unless parents have specified in their wills that the godparents will become the TEEN's guardian in such an event, godparents have no legal rights. However, if a parent does die or fails to guide the TEEN spiritually, the godparent may take on a bigger role in the TEEN's spiritual life. On top of having great entertainment, veterans often receive fun discounts in local restaurants and shops. Often restaurants or local fast food joints give free breakfast on Veterans Day and drinks or treats to those who have a valid form of military ID. While some have a veteran organization membership card to show, others may offer discharge papers or even wear their uniform as their form of identification, which may be enough for some places. Not only do veterans receive discounts though, but the general public gets a few perks as well, one of them being free admission to any National Park in the United States. In Christianity, a godparent is a person who promises to encourage a TEEN's spiritual and religious growth as the TEEN ages. The Catholic Church requires that parents choose a godparent that is also of the Catholic faith, and specialized training is required to fulfill the role. The role of godparent is less formal in other denominations and churches. Parents typically pick one or two godparents, usually a male and a female to serve as godfather and godmother. Those godparents attend the TEEN's baptism and promise to uphold their roles throughout the TEEN's life. While it was obviously a brazen move, this criminal act raises a lot of questions. So, did Lupercalia involve chocolates and heart-shaped sweets? Not exactly. To kick things off, an order of Roman priests known as the Luperci would gather in a sacred cave where, according to legend, Rome's founders were cared for by a wolf. They would then sacrifice a goat and a dog, animals that represent fertility and purification respectively. The goat's hide was then dipped in blood, taken to the fields and, finally, given to the Roman women. According to History, "Roman women welcomed the touch of the hides because it was believed to make them more fertile in the coming year." All of this ended in a lottery-like matchmaking system to pair the city's young women and men together. A little more involved than swiping left, huh? Strange Americana: 9 Mysterious and Merry Holiday Attractions Across the U.S. By the end of the 400s A.D., Pope Gelasius put an end to the festival, noting that its pagan roots were in direct opposition to Christianity. In an attempt to Christianize the holiday, Pope Gelasius decided to replace Lupercalia with a Christian feast day. During the Middle Ages, folks would associate this feast day with love and romance, especially in the wake of Geoffrey Chaucer's The Parlement of Foules, a poem about birds finding their mates. Who Was Saint Valentine? So, how did this feast day become known as Valentine's Day? Well, most Christian feast days are associated with a saint and, as you might be able to guess, Saint Valentine is primarily known as the patron saint of lovers. According to the Catholic Church, there were at least three martyred saints named Valentine or Valentinus, so it's difficult to determine for whom the day was named.
